

Call for Papers
Special Issue of Research in Transportation Economics on “Urban Transportation Economics: Theory and Practice”

Guest Editors

By 2050, almost seven-tenths of the world's population is forecasted to inhabit urban areas. Urban travel demand yields traffic jams and air and noise pollution. Promoting intelligent infrastructure development efficiently and sustainably poses daunting challenges for decision-makers.

Research in Transportation Economics, a peer-reviewed journal published by Elsevier, invites papers for publication consideration in a Special Issue on “Urban Transportation Economics: Theory and Practice”. The Special Issue shall showcase selected papers from the 20th International Conference of the Hong Kong Society for Transportation Studies, whose theme is “Urban Transport Analytics” and whose conference is scheduled to be held on December 12th – 14th, 2015. In this connection, the Special Issue welcomes contributions from all areas of transportation economics, be it theory or practice, as related to urban transportation broadly defined. Papers heretofore not presented at the 20th HKSTS International Conference are welcome. Theoretical, methodological or empirical papers (including interpretative surveys and case studies) shall be considered.

Submission Method:

Submissions shall undergo regular peer review. By November 15th, 2015, papers need to be submitted electronically at the following link:

https://www.evis.com/evis/faces/pages/navigation/NavController.jspx?JRNL_ACR=RETREC

When submitting your manuscript, please choose “SI: Urban Transportation Economics: Theory and Practice” for “Article Type”.
